Karkade Packaging

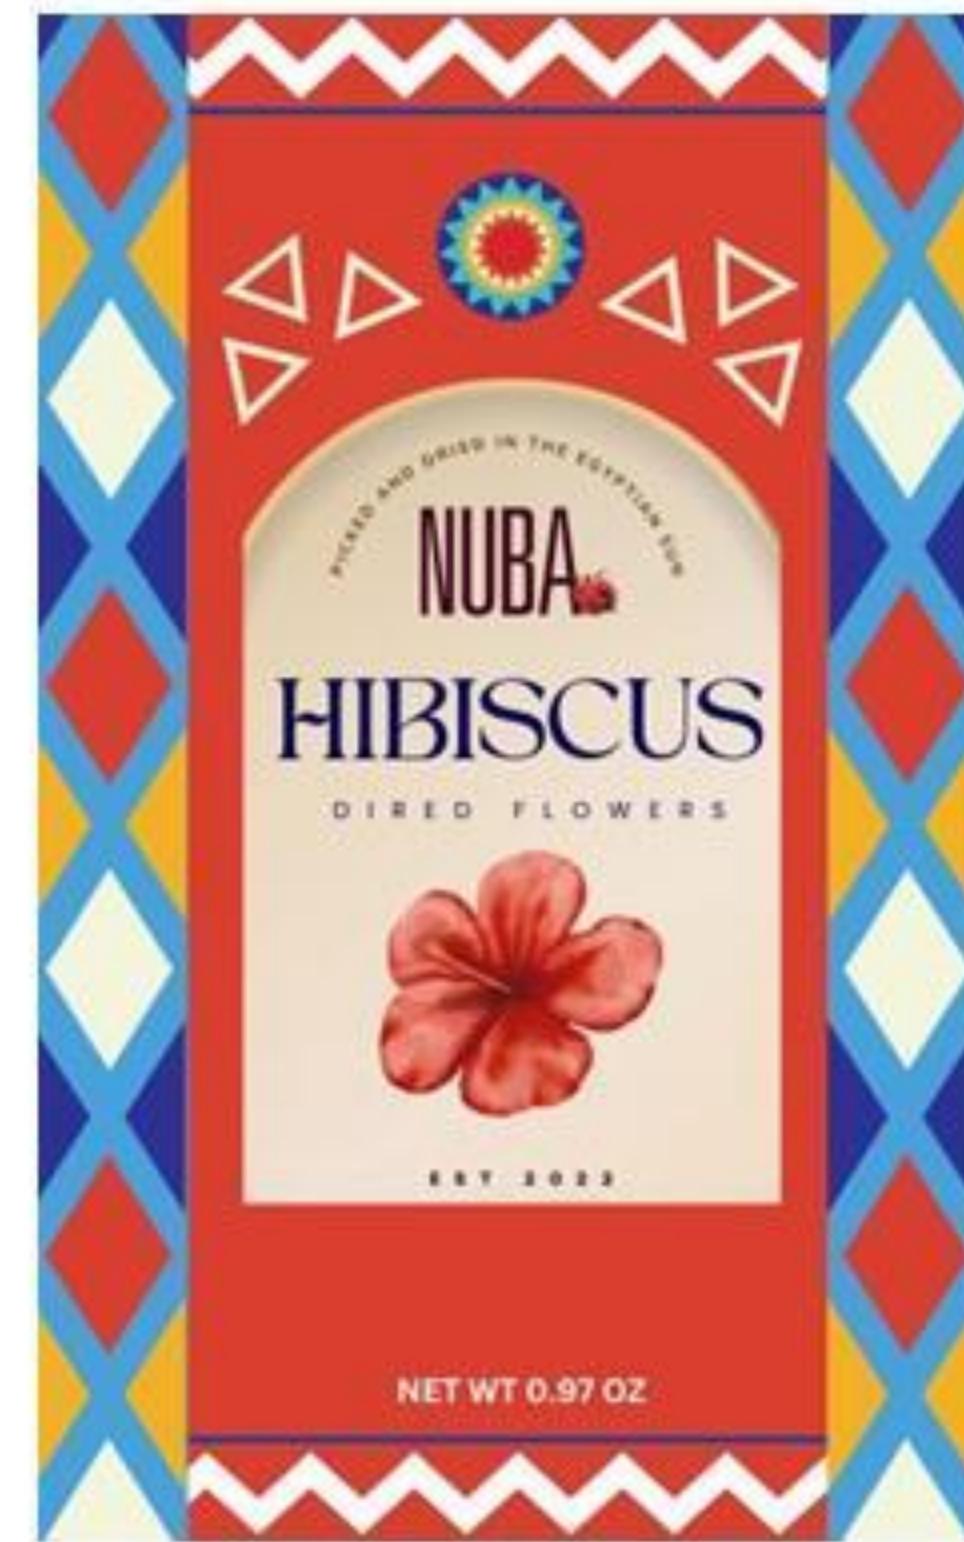

MURAH

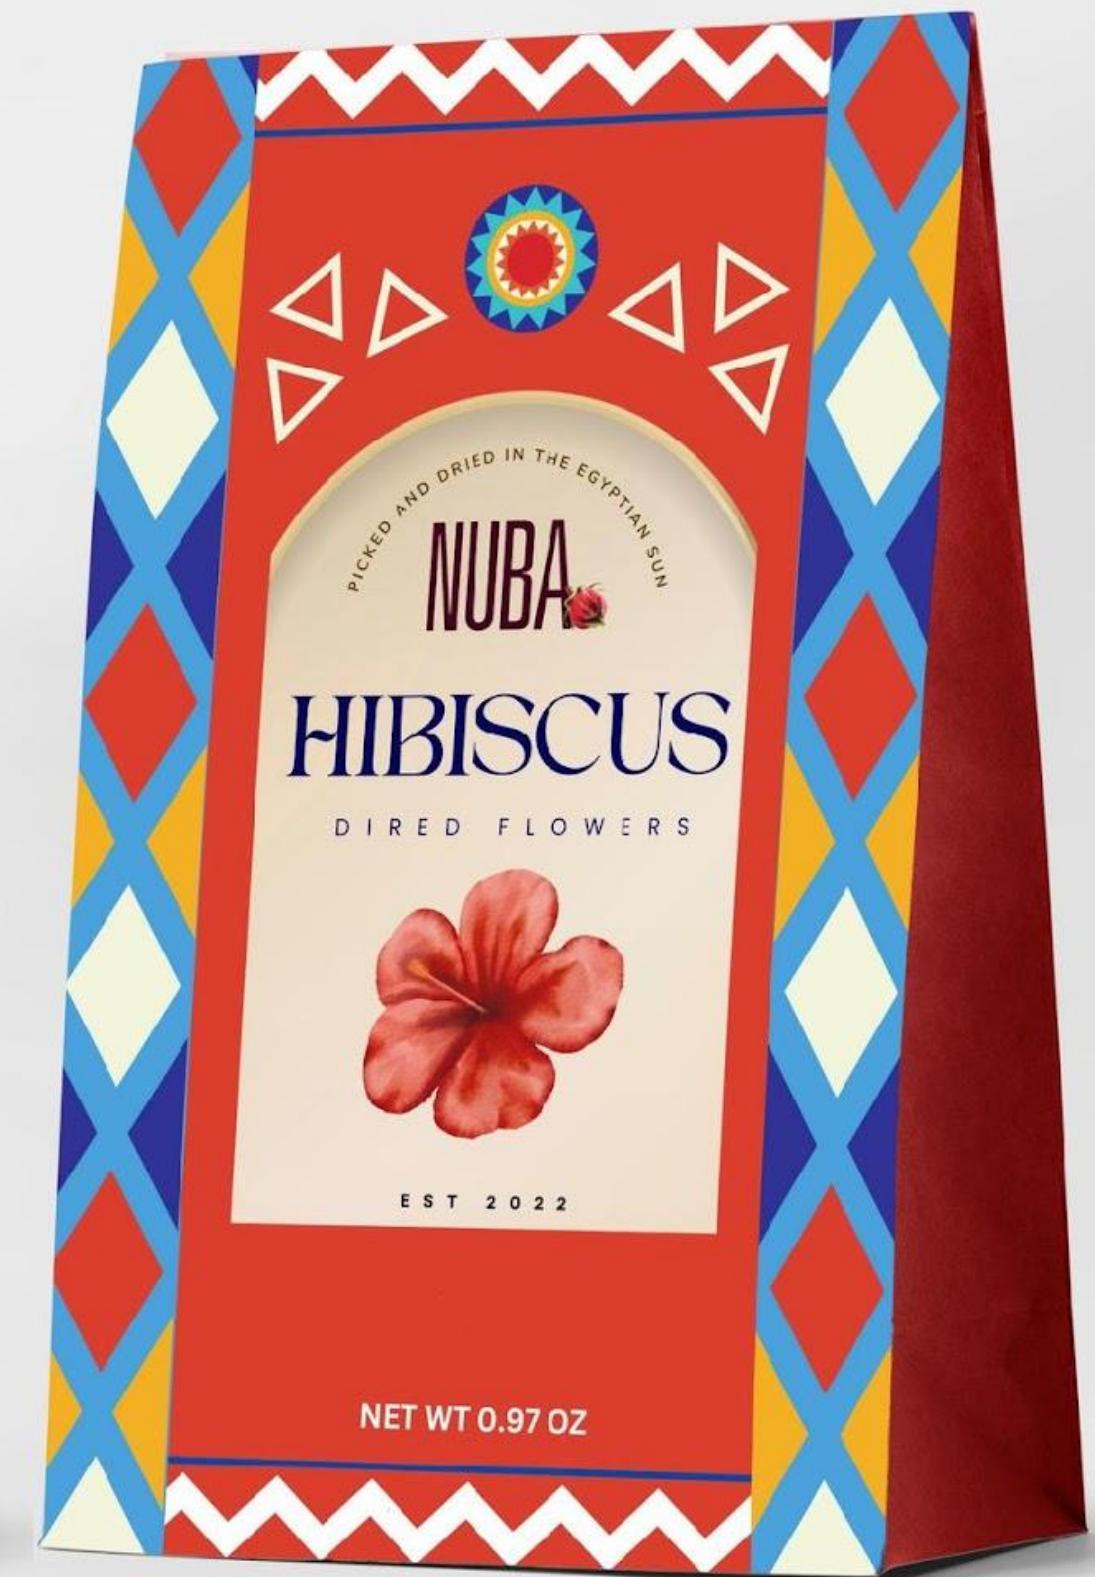

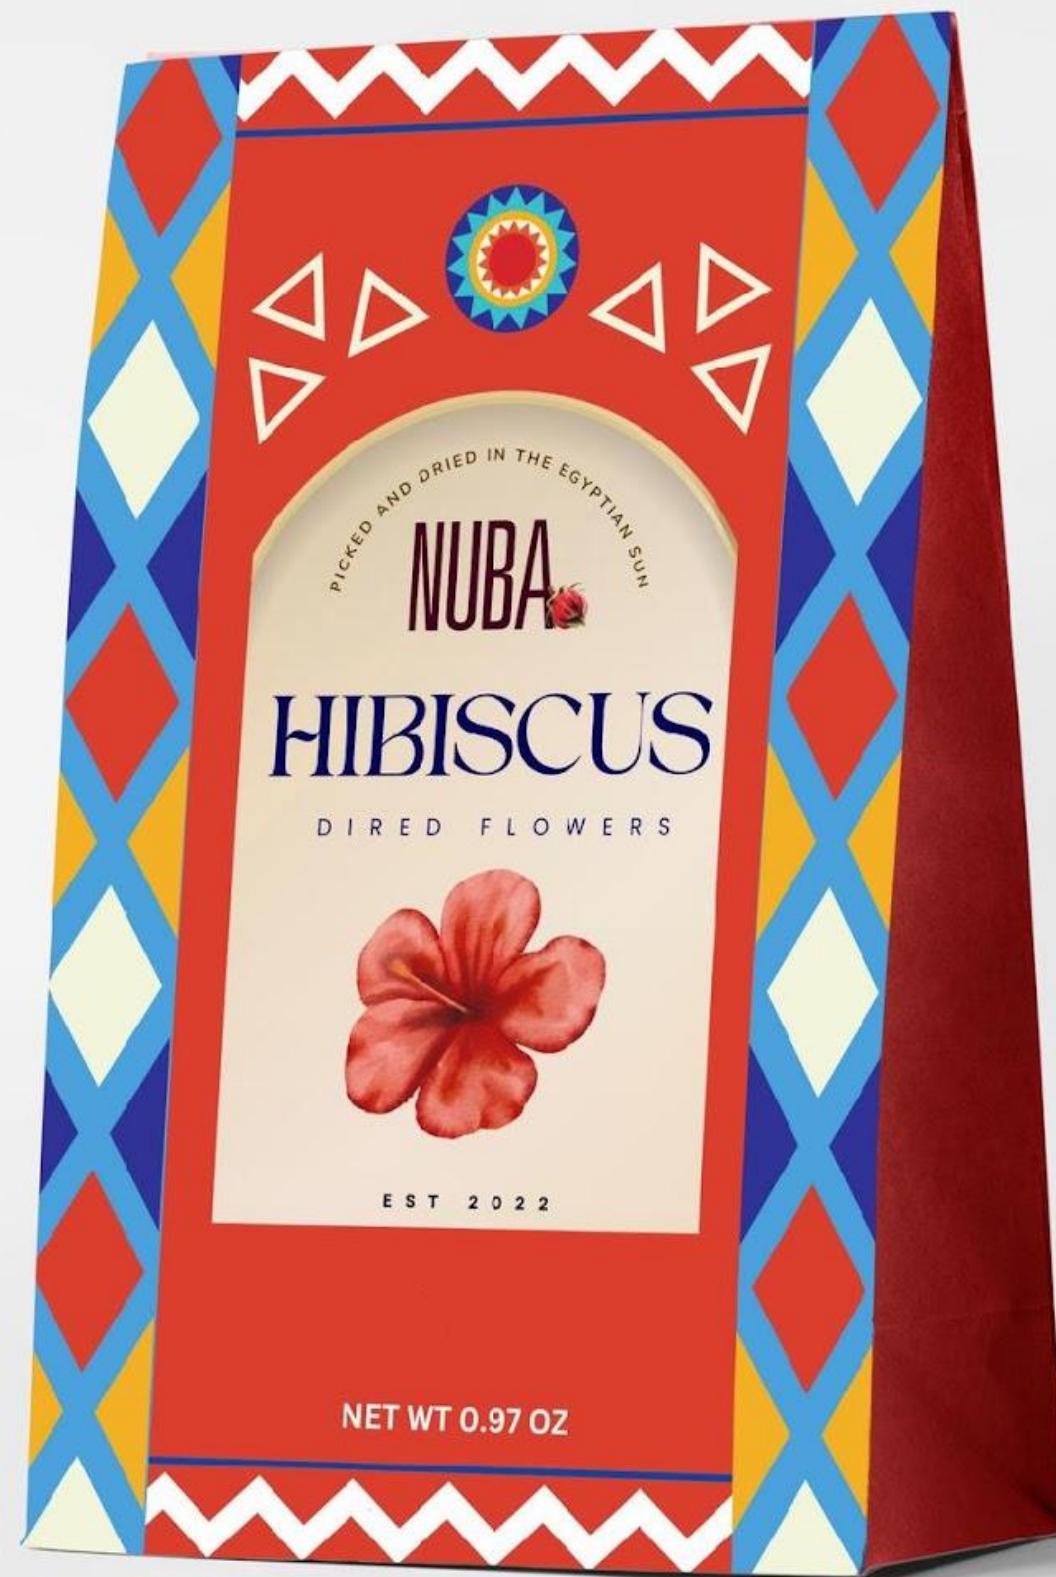

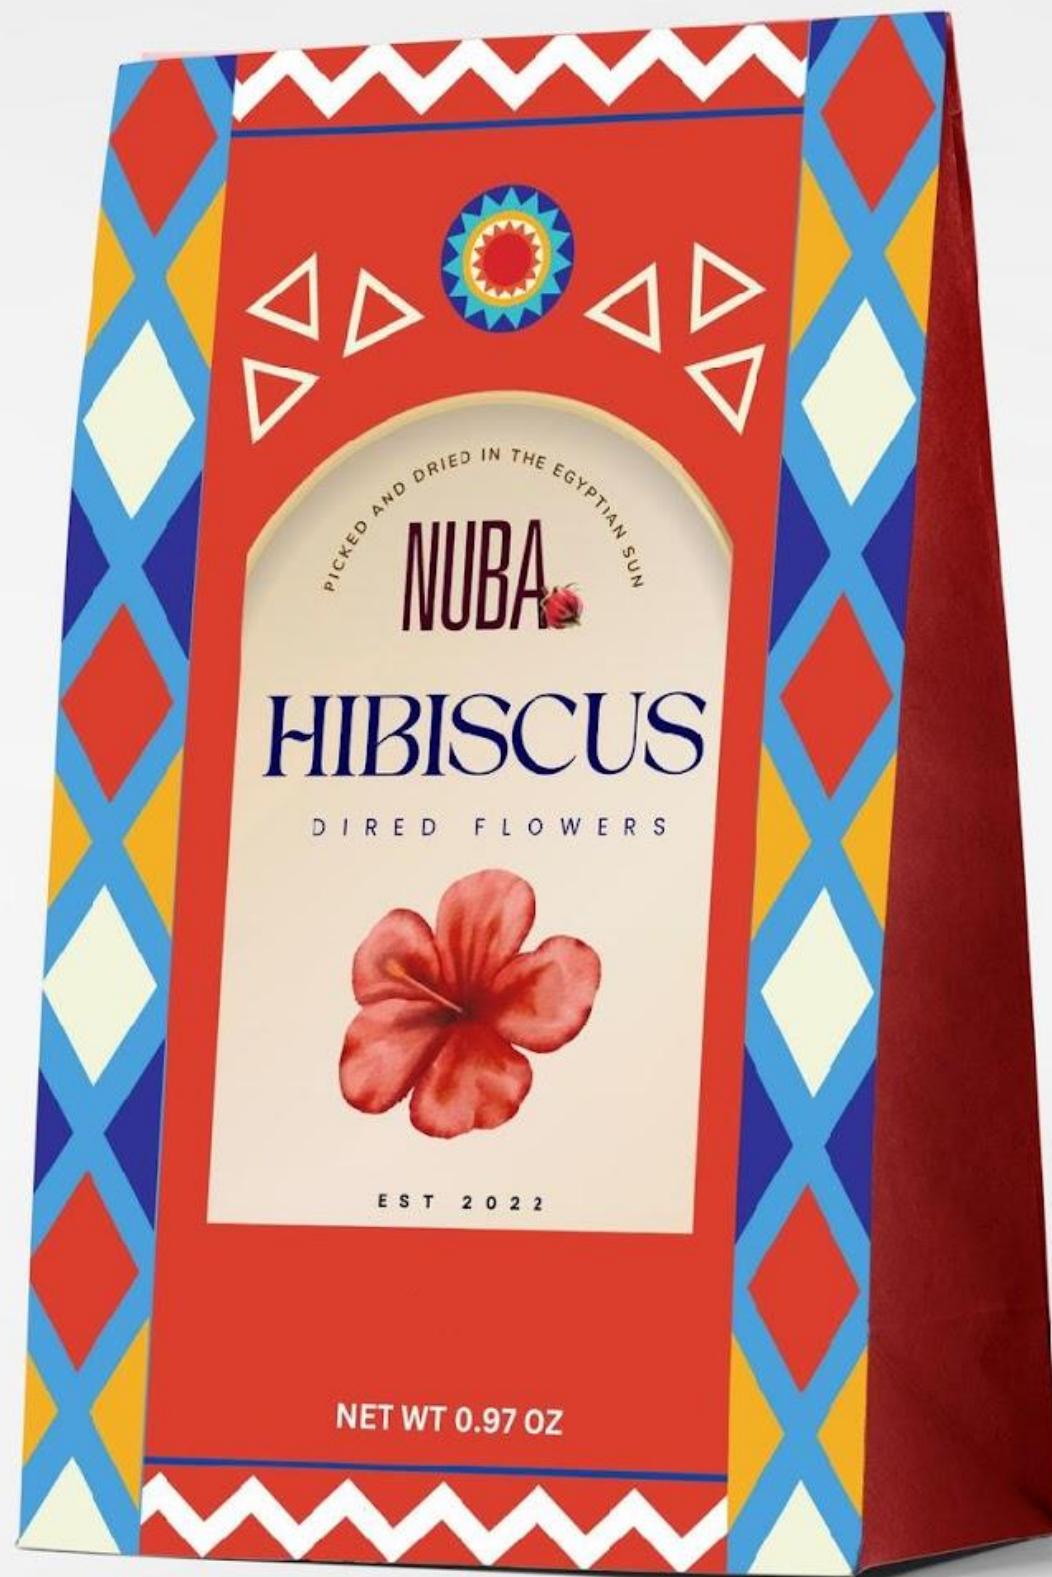

Introduction

- The purpose of this project is to improve and adorn the bottle of our favorite beverage, "Karkade," which has been around since the time of the ancient Egyptians. Typically, we purchase it from العطارة , where it is packaged in plastic bags. The new packaging has a visually appealing aesthetic that is appealing, unique, different, and elegant. If someone wants to gift or deliver the much-loved beverage outside of Egypt, a better package that stands out would be the ideal solution.

Beuotat Olive Oil

The Problem and The Main Concept to Solve it

The Problem: There is no visual emphasis on Egyptian Identity. Although it is a luxury brand and is exported abroad, it does not have a clear Egyptian identity, although it is a product of historical Egyptian origins and was manufactured by the Pharaohs thousands of years ago. To manufacture a product of this efficiency and quality, it must have a clear Egyptian historical shape and identity.

The Concept: The concept is taken from the way the Pharaohs pressed olives to obtain olive oil. It is also taken from the shape of olive tree branches, olive fruit, hieroglyphic inscriptions, and pharaonic ornamentation to produce a design in the form of a pharaonic mural that emphasizes the Egyptian identity.

Inspired from:

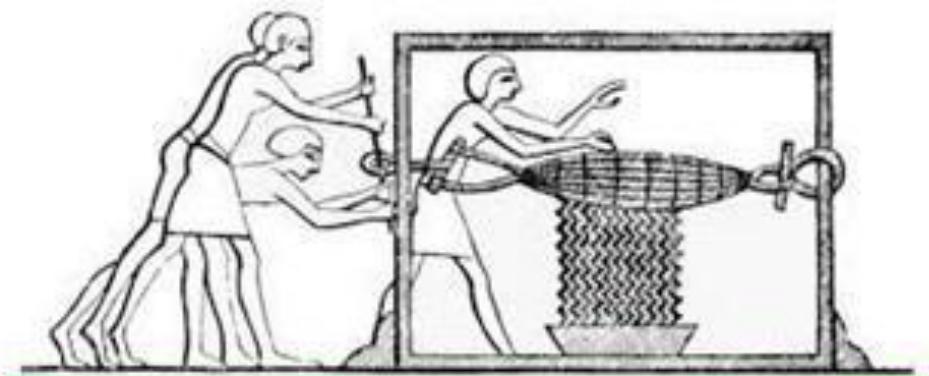

An ancient painting which shows the ancient Egyptians squeezing the olives using the manual juicer to represent how old is this Egyptian industry and the olive tree branch to represent freshness and purnes.

Painting from tomb of Puyemre, Thebes, Egypt.
